How to use codeine cough syrup

This medication is typically used for nasal congestion and to relieve a cough. Its effects can be felt within 1 hour.

This medication is typically used every 6 hours. However, your pharmacist may have suggested a different schedule that is more appropriate for you. Generally, it is used only as needed.

Important: Follow the instructions on the label. Do not use more of this product, or more often, than prescribed. To ensure exact dosage, measure each dose with an accurate measuring device.

This medication may be taken with or without food. It is recommended to drink plenty of water while using this medication.

Consuming alcohol may intensify the effect of this product. It is therefore advisable to avoid consuming alcohol or alcohol-containing products while taking this medication.

Possible side effects

In addition to its desired action, this medication may cause some side effects, notably:

- it may cause constipation — to prevent this, drink plenty of water or juice, and eat more dietary fiber.
- it may cause dizziness – use caution when getting up from a lying or sitting position and use caution if driving.
- it may cause either drowsiness or excitability — use caution until you know how you will react.
- it may cause nausea and vomiting.
- it may cause nervousness or anxiety.
- it may cause palpitations (rapid and strong heartbeat).

Each person may react differently to a treatment. If you think this medication may be causing side effects (including those described here, or others), talk to your health care professional. He or she can help you to determine whether or not the medication is the source of the problem.
